From private mourning to dutiful public ceremony...

A NEW chapter in the country's mourning began yesterday when the Queen's closest family accompanied her coffin from Buckingham Palace to one of the country's most fabled buildings.

King Charles, the Prince of Wales, Princess Anne and the Duke of Gloucester - all "working royals" clad in military uniform – saluted as the bearer party prepared to carry the coffin into Westminster Hall. Prince Andrew and Prince Harry, dressed in dark suits, bowed their heads.

Hundreds of thousands of people are expected to file past the coffin in the coming days, but in the afternoon sunlight these family members signalled their own respect for a beloved mother and grandmother.

Each has faced the challenge of mourning in public. Just as birth into the Royal Family means a normal life is all but impossible, the death of a monarch is a landmark event for the nation.

Hall in 2002 when Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother lay in state for three days. Many more are expected this time.

Those who endure the queues will step into a space where defining events in British history have played out. Built in 1097 by the son of William the Conqueror, it has lost none of its capacity to inspire awe with the passing of the centuries.

It was here in 1533 that the coronation banquet of Anne Boleyn was celebrated. In this same hall Guy Fawkes and the Gunpowder Plot conspirators faced trial in 1606, as did Charles I in 1649.

Nelson Mandela addressed both Houses of Parliament here in 1996 and Barack Obama had the same honour in 2011.

This vast chamber will now be a place of near silence in the coming days as people pay their wordless tributes to the Queen.

Sad notes of music marches

By Alex Green

MUSIC played an important role during the procession carrying the Queen's coffin from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Hall yesterday afternoon.

During the procession, the Band of the Scots Guards and the Band of the Grenadier Guards performed a number of different marches.

The featured pieces were Beethoven's Funeral March No 1, as well as Beethoven's Funeral Marches No 2 and 3.

Also played were Mendelssohn's
Funeral March and Chopin's Funeral
March, which was played at the funeral of Sir Winston Churchill.

The Queen's coffin entered Westminster Hall as the choir of Westminster Abbey and the choir of His Majesty's Chapel Royal, St James's Palace, sang the Psalm 139.

In included beautiful singing by the choir and faultless performances by the soldiers who, despite their cumbersome ceremonial uniforms, complete with swords and helmets, took up their places at the catafalque in perfect formation at the beginning of their vigil.

The Westminster Hall service also featured another display of unity in the Royal Family, with the Duke and Duchess of Sussex stand-of Wales, who, behind a black veil, looked anguished but resolute. In a personal tribute, she wore a diamond and pearl-leaf brooch that had once belonged to Her Majesty.

The hall was then opened to members of the public, who had been queuing for hours in a remarkable line that stretched back to Tower Bridge - another illustration of the huge affection for Elizabeth II.

When her father lay in state in 1952, BBC broadcaster Richard Dimbleby said: "How moving can such simplicity be? How real the tears of those who pass and see it? Never safer, better guarded lay a sleeping king than this, with golden candlelight to warm his resting place and the muffled footsteps of his devoted subjects to keep him company."

Seventy years later, the sight of our late monarch evokes the same sentiments.

Sorrowful

At the end of the ceremony the first vigil around the coffin was mounted by four officers from the Household Division – two each from the Blues and Royals and Life Guards.

The royal party paid tribute to the Queen by bowing or curtseying before filing out in procession, followed by the extended family.

In full military regalia, the Duke of Kent, 86, bravely struggled to march out, watched anxiously by the Duke of Gloucester.

They were also accompanied by Prince Michael of Kent whose wife Princess Michael was helped out on crutches by her son Lord Frederick Windsor and his actress wife Sophie Winkleman.

It was a sorrowful afternoon for the family but the King and Queen Consort have the chance for a brief respite away from the cameras ahead of the state funeral.

They flew by helicopter to Wiltshire. Camilla went to Raymill House, her country retreat in Lacock, while the King was understood to have driven to Highgrove House in Gloucestershire.

The main line has step-free access with a separate route for the disabled running from Tate Britain. Guide dogs will be allowed inside Westminster Hall, with sign language interpreters also on hand.

Strict rules govern the size of bags allowed inside - and people have been asked to check before setting out.

Once inside the hall, visitors are allowed a few seconds with the Queen's coffin, elevated on a catafalque and draped in the Royal Standard, topped with the orb and sceptre. Those leaving and arriving in London for the lying-in-state and funeral have been warned that it is "impossible" to predict crowd sizes. Transport for London bosses say it is the "biggest event and challenge" in its history.

Passengers could face short-notice Tube station closures - and people have been asked to consider walking to their final destinations. Night trains and extra services are being scheduled - and engineering works postponed to allow smooth journeys.

Network Rail said: "Where possible, we will be running some extra services, including a very limited service operating through the night on some routes."

National Highways has also acted to reduce strain for drivers.

It said: "All closures for roadworks on motorways in and out of London will be paused until after the state funeral on Monday 19 September.

"All other closures on the motorway network nationally will be postponed for the duration of the extended bank holiday weekend. Existing roadworks will also be removed where possible."

paid his respects. I too was one of those fortunate enough to be there. A privilege given to me as a journalist who works in the Palace of Westminster.

Not only was I there to observe but to pay my respects to the only monarch I and millions of others have ever known.

Thoughts of jubilees past, royal weddings, the Olympics, Princess Diana and many more historical events flooded my mind.

Then the silence was broken. The sound of boots marching on stone, the metallic clank of armour and swords echoed around the hall. The changing of the guard.

And then the silence began again. The members of the Household Cavalry motionless as they continued to guard Queen Elizabeth II.

Westminster Hall has been used for royalty and former Prime Ministers to lie in state seven times. The last royal was Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mother, 20 years ago.

Covering her death was my first ever job as a reporter. But this time it feels not just the end of an era but the end of an epoch.

SEVEN-YEAR-OLD Rosie Bucknell queued patiently for the chance to pay her respects to the Queen - just as her grandfather had done nearly 70 years ago for the Coronation.

Rosie, from Stanford Dingley, Berks, who was number A269 in the queue, was one of the youngest there - and was following in the footsteps of her grandfather Edward, 77.

At the same age as Rosie, Edward camped out on the streets of the capital before the Coronation in June 1953.

Rosie's mother, retired Army Major Aisling Bucknell, 45, got permission from her daughter's school to bring her to London.

Rosie said: "I think it is good if we say goodbye to the Queen before she goes up to heaven. "When we go into where she

Another youngster in the crowd was Chloe Harkness, 11, who had never been to London before and had arrived feeling "in awe" of the place at 5.30am.

Chloe, from West Yorkshire, said: "I don't know what I'll say or do when I see the Queen's coffin, I am a little bit nervous thinking about it, but I think it will give me goosebumps."

Her queue neighbour Sara Brown, from Essex, told how as a 10-year-old girl in 1981, she was selected to give flowers to the Queen, who was boarding the Royal Yacht Britannia at Parkeston Quay, Harwich.

Sara, 51, said: "I was so nervous I that forgot to hand them to her. She smiled and said to me, 'Oh! Are those for me?"

By News Reporter

THE BBC has launched a dedicated video stream of the Queen lying in state, for people who want to pay their respects virtually.

The online and TV service is being offered globally for those who cannot travel to London or are physically unable to queue.

The live stream of the vigil at Westminster Hall, which is due to end at 6.30am on Monday, September 19 - the day of the Queen's State funeral - will be available on the BBC's online home page.

It will also be accessible on the BBC News website as well as the app, BBC iPlayer, BBC Parliament and the red button.

RITAIN puts on displays of pageantry that no other nation can match. The splendid fusion of ceremony and performance witnessed at Trooping the Colour, the State Opening of Parliament and, most recently, the Proclamation of our new King dazzles the world.

But some of the most moving spectacles in recent days have not been choreographed by courtiers. The spontaneous ways that ordinary people have demonstrated their respect and love for our late Queen is a testament to the extraordinary bond she forged with her nation through the 70 years of her reign.

Families have rushed to buy flowers to leave at the gates of royal residences. Right now, thousands of men and women are queuing for the chance to attend her lyingin-state in Westminster Hall.

In its way, the spectacle of people crowding onto the roadside to witness her coffin being transported from Balmoral to Edinburgh was every bit as breathtaking as a Red Arrows fly-past.

The public have not been corralled or coerced into showing respect. In a Britain where the age of deference is a fading memory, multitudes of us have jumped at the chance to express our thanks for the life of our exceptional Queen and show solidarity with her grieving family.

The displays of love will be etched in the memories of children. They will not have the privilege of growing up in a country where Queen Elizabeth is at the centre of our national life, but they will remember how their parents and grandparents and neighbours from every walk of life were united in gratitude for this unique monarch.

Long after books of condolence are closed, stories will circulate of the ways she brought encouragement and often laughter into lives with a simple gesture or some wisely chosen words.

The Queen is the definition of a life welllived and she provides a brilliant and daunting example to follow. Even though she lived through successive eras in which individual of others.

On discovering Her Majesty intended to wear bright green, Attenborough, who produced the festive broadcast during the 1980s, had to awkwardly point out she would clash with the green wallpaper due to be behind her during the recording.

Given permission to "rifle through the Queen's wardrobe", Attenborough instead chose a less flattering "mushroom-coloured" outfit for the sovereign.

CLAIRE Foy has told of the honour of portraying Her Majesty in TV's The Crown, calling the Queen a "massive symbol of continuity and dignity and grace".

The actress, 38, inset, who played the monarch in the Netflix show's first two series, said: "She was an incredible monarch. She united people. "My main feeling is just thinking about her as a mother, grandmother and a great-grandmother, really, and I'm very honoured to have been a teeny-tiny, small part of her story."

The Crown series one was in the top 10 most-streamed Netflix shows last week.

Record number track last flight

By Neil Lancefield

THE plane which carried the Queen's coffin from Edinburgh to London was the world's most-tracked flight.

Flightradar24 said six million people attempted to click on the flight on its website within a minute as the C-17 Globemaster aircraft prepared to take off.

This caused "unprecedented strain" and caused the website to crash.

Flightradar24 said it "implemented a number of traffic calming measures" before the flight as it "expected a large influx of users", but the "massive spike was beyond what we had anticipated".

A record five million people still followed Tuesday's journey to RAF Northolt, north-west London, across the website, app and YouTube live stream.

The previous record was set last month when 2.2 million people tracked a plane carrying US politician Nancy Pelosi to Taiwan.

Clarence House staff facing axe

By Martyn Brown

ALMOST 100 Clarence House staff could lose their job as the offices of King Charles and the Queen Consort move to Buckingham Palace.

The staff, including some who have worked there for decades, have received notification of their redundancy.

Private secretaries, the finance office, the communications team and household staff are among those who received notice their posts were on the line.

The news came as the thanksgiving service for the Queen was taking place at St Giles' Cathedral in Edinburgh on Monday. One source said: "Everybody is absolutely livid, including private secretaries and the senior team."

A Clarence House spokesman said: "Our staff have given long and loyal service and, while some redundancies will be unavoidable, we are working urgently to identify alternative roles."

THE MISUNDERSTOOD

By Margaret James

ROMTHE backseat of his Rolls-Royce Phantom VI, the King of less than one day craned his neck to determine the number and, more specifically, mood of whatever crowds might have gathered around the gates of Buckingham Palace following the death of the Queen.

To his obvious joy - and, frankly, some surprise – they were large in number and joyful in voice, with multiple cheers and shouts of "God save the King!" clearly audible.

The car suddenly stopped and the King and his Queen Consort Camilla, looking equally shell-shocked at the news, and her newly-elevated position, tentatively embarked on an impromptu walkabout among the crowds.

As he was enthusiastically received - and kissed - the new King cannot have failed to cast his mind back to an almost identical walkabout conducted by his late mother and father after the nation demanded some show of public acknowledgement of the death of Diana, Princess of Wales. And we must look back to this period in history, 25 years ago, to answer the question why, despite his obvious ability, dedication and commitment to the role of king, Charles is our most misunderstood monarch.

During her controversial, now discredited, interview with Martin Bashir for Panorama in 1995, Diana planted the seed in people's minds that Charles was not up to being King. When asked by Bashir if their son, Prince

William, then 13, should succeed the Queen instead of Prince Charles, she replied: "My wish is that my husband finds peace of mind, and from that follows other things, yes."

During the infamous War of the Waleses throughout the 1990s, Charles and Diana's aides frequently briefed against the other party. But arguably it was the future King's reputation as a philandering, uncaring and unsuitable heir to the throne, who held unconventional views on everything from plants to human rights laws, that was the most damaged.

DETRACTORS, was seen as weak, vain, interfering, and ill-equipped for the role of sovereign. Those critics were in action again yesterday, pointing to his tetchiness during a second "pengate" incident as evidence he is hopelessly pampered and, beneath the magisterial veneer, irascible and quick to chide and condescend. Then followed news a number of staff at Clarence House faced

"The man never stops," said William in a documentary to mark his father's 70th birthday.

"I mean when we were kids there were bags and bags and bags of work that the office just sent to him.

"We could barely even get to his desk to say goodnight to him."

And weren't Charles' momentary lapses in decorum at proclamations in London and Belfast over the past week perhaps a direct result of those decades of derision?

Since birth, for seven long decades, he has been preparing to be King and when his moment finally arrives is it too much to expect an ink pen that doesn't leak?

R THAT someone considered has that there is sufficient space on the desk for him to sign the most important document of his life? Surely, it is also highly unlikely Charles had any direct hand in the doubtless appalling timing issuing redundancies during the official period of mourning.

Add to that this septuagenarian, who has just lost his beloved mother, has travelled the length and breadth of Britain several times over this past week, taken part in endless walkabouts, services and procedures on an average of five hours' sleep.

As ever, his Queen Consort was there to calm him and she will be a crucial weapon in King Charles' arsenal as he treads carefully into his new role.

But he brings with him arguably more relevant and modern approaches to pressing geo-political and social issues than his mother, of another generation, was able to.

The late Queen's shoes will be hard to fill but perhaps the public is slowly appreciating for the first time that our most misjudged monarch, far from being a second-rate replacement for his mother, might just be the country's biggest asset.

Family's grief behind royal call of duty

THROUGHOUT their lives, the Windsors have been spoken of as a pretty unemotional crew, far more capable of relating to dogs and horses than actual human beings, but this week has blown that lot out of the water.

All four of the Queen's children have been visibly struggling with their emotions, with all four more than once seeming to be on the point of breaking down. This is hardly shocking given the circumstances, but it is the doughty Princess Anne who surprises most.

From what we know of her she might well be castigating herself for allowing her emotions to show through in public, but it will only boost her standing with the public.

Underneath the steely exterior, there beats a heart as warm as anyone's – that's for sure.

THERE have been many lump-in-throat moments over the last few days, not least involving memes of the Queen, Prince Philip, corgis, horses and Paddington Bear.

But the floodgates finally opened properly when I saw the Globemaster C-17 take off to bring her back to London. Such a tiny body in such a huge plane. But while she might have been physically small, her presence and persona were all-encompassing.

Extraordinary the presence that one frail, little old lady possessed.

MUCH SCORN has (understandably) been heaped on Oprah Winfrey for saying she hopes the Queen's death will help Harry and Meghan make "peace" with The Firm.

"She forgets she started it," has been the most common reply. She did indeed, in that awful interview, but does one detect a note of buyer's remorse? Given that so much of what the two of them came out with turned out to have not that much to do with the actualité, could Oprah actually be a little embarrassed about giving the pair a platform? Or launching this latest phase of Meghan's career?

Love and support to cheer our new King

ROM THE very word go, the warmth was palpable. King Charles, looking shellshocked with grief as his destiny came to fruition after so many years, has been hit by a tidal wave of affection and goodwill as he ascended to the throne. More than once over the last week he has been on the verge of tears: when he made his first address to the nation, when members of the Houses of Commons and Lords sang God Save The King, when accepting the greetings of his subjects, as we now are. And he deserved it, too.

It has been said that this national will for him to succeed is down to his mother, and that is of course part of it, but it's more than that. Of course King Charles has made mistakes, as have we all, but it's patently obvious that he's a decent man who has tried to make the best out of a sometimes difficult life.

Yes, he's had the kind of privilege that most of can only dream of, but he's had to wait until well past pensionable age to assume the role he was born into. On top of that he must have had to cope with the knowledge that it would be only with the death of his mother that he would actually be able to step into the role of his life. "Conflicted" I believe is the term for it here.

"Conflicted" I believe is the term for it here.

I hope as much as anyone that whether it be long or short the new Carolean era is a golden one, both for the new King and for us all. But I suspect it is as the Prince of Wales that Charles will be remembered by history, because in a bid to give meaning to what he knew would be a long wait for the throne, he had to carve out a role in a way no one else has done before.

We all realise now that he was streets ahead of his time when it came to concerns about the environment and architecture, but what is often terribly overlooked is his work with The Prince's Trust.

I have reported on this in the past and it is phenomenal what the King has done: gave thousands and thousands of underprivileged youngsters chances that they would never otherwise have had. His Trust helped reoffenders to forge new lives, too, in sharp contrast to those who talk a great deal about service, while doing pretty much nada. But this isn't the time, so naming no names.

Nor could most of us possibly begrudge Camilla, the Queen Consort, her role and her title, not least because, whatever happened in the past, she clearly provides happiness and stability to the current incumbent on the throne. The monarchy has suited this country pretty well and so anyone who makes the crown a little lighter for its wearer is to be welcomed.

These days Charles radiates a security and stability that certainly wasn't there in the past. All of the Windsor men have been shaped, for better or worse, by their marriages. It is a relief for us all that Charles got this one right.

UK inflation eases slightly as prices fall at the petrol pumps

By Martyn Brown Deputy Political Editor

HARD-PRESSED families have been given a glimmer of hope that the cost-of-living crisis is easing, as figures show inflation has fallen.

It slipped to 9.9 per cent last month, the first drop in nearly a year, after fuel prices tumbled.

The welcome figures came as the Government promised to backdate energy bill support for businesses, amid concerns that the scheme for pressure-hit firms could be delayed.

Officials are working on a strategy to support businesses through the winter – after Prime Minister Liz Truss announced last week a "big bazooka" package of energy support for UK households.

It guarantees that, for two years, bills for the average home will not increase past £2,500, saving typical households around £1,000.

Intervention

It will kick in from October 1, with analysts expecting it to cut inflation by a further five per cent next year.

The Office for National Statistics said that the fall in petrol and diesel prices was the main factor in the inflation decrease from the 10.1 per cent seen in July.

The 6.8 per cent drop in motor fuel prices was the highest since between March and April 2020, the early days of the pandemic.

But the ONS also warned that ever-increasing food prices were keeping the rate high.

The inflation news comes days after statistics showed the economy is growing again, albeit slowly and that unemployment has also fallen to its lowest level since 1974.

But Julian Jessop, of free market think tank the Institute of Economic Affairs, said it was "far too soon to sound the all-clear".

He added: "The headline rate of inflation remains close to 10 per cent and food price inflation is still rising. The Energy Price Guarantee means that consumer price inflation

COMMENT

JULIAN JESSOP Fellow at the Institute of

Economic affairs

AT last, some better news on UK inflation. The headline figure of 9.9 per cent in August, down from 10.1 per cent in July, was slightly lower than expected. But inflation remains painfully high.

The fall last month was largely due to the drop in petrol prices, but food price inflation rose, to more than 13 per cent, and this will have a far bigger impact on lower-income households.

Consumer price inflation of around 10 per cent is also still five times the Bank of England's target. Underlying inflation, excluding food and energy, is running at more than 6 per cent.

The Government's new Energy Price Guarantee does at least mean inflation should peak at around 11 per cent in the coming months, before falling sharply next year. This has reduced the risks of a deep recession.

Bolder

The latest data on the prices firms pay for inputs and charge at the factory gate also suggest pressures further up the pipeline are easing. Natural gas prices are now dropping sharply too.

Nonetheless, the Bank has more work to do. Of course, its Monetary Policy Committee can't influence global energy prices, or prevent supply shocks - but a period of very low interest rates and money-printing under "quantitative easing" added fuel to inflation.

It needs to be bolder to restore credibility now. Raising rates by three-quarters of a percentage point next week, rather than the expected half point, would only take rates to 2.5 per cent, which is still low. But it would show the MPC is serious about slashing inflation over the longer term.

It is also important the Bank begins selling its holdings of Government bonds (known as "gilts"). Any backtracking would reinforce the impression that the Bank has lost focus on its actual job, which is to control inflation.

sharply next year." Alex Veitch, of the

THE average UK house price leapt by 15.5 per cent annually in July, marking the biggest increase in 19

The increase was around double the annual rate recorded in June, when it stood at 7.8 per cent.

The Office for National Statistics said the increase in values was the highest since May 2003.

It was mainly because of a "base effect" from the fall in prices last year as a result of the stamp duty holiday changes, the report said.

Energy bill help for businesses from October THE Government has promised to backdate energy bill support for struggling businesses, after concerns that help might be delayed for weeks.

Officials are readying assistance for a hard winter but some firms fear they will wait far longer than households for equivalent aid.

Downing Street aides yesterday promised more details next week plus a pledge to backdate help. The Prime Minister's official spokesman said: "The scheme will support businesses with their October energy bills and that includes through backdating."

By Dominic McGrath

Plans may need legislation, which is being "worked through" and the Government has been speaking to energy suppliers and firms to provide "reassurance".

Beset by the cost-of-living crisis, Liz Truss' administration faces a highly restricted Parliamentary timetable before the party conference break.

Much day-to-day politics has been placed on hold, with the country in a period of mourning for Queen Elizabeth II.

The Government has insisted that any delay with aid is not due to the death of the monarch, but more down to the challenge of devising a fresh energy bills support strategy from scratch. The PM's spokesman continued: "We're having to build a brand new system to deliver this support, rather than using the existing one."

The household scheme – which will be paid for with tens of billions of pounds of borrowing guarantees that for two years energy costs for the average household will not increase beyond £2,500, saving typical billpayers around £1,000.

Cops arrest four men over Ashley gun death

By Eleanor Barlow

FOUR men have been arrested in connection with the death of a council worker who was shot in her back garden.

Ashley Dale, 28, died in the early hours of Sunday August 21 in the Old Swan area of Liverpool.

Police said four men had been arrested in Merseyside and Cumbria.

A 27-year-old man from Roby, Merseyside, a 40-year-old man from Huyton and a 35-year-old man from Old Swan – both in Liverpool – were arrested on suspicion of murder and possession of a firearm, said a force spokesman.

A 57-year-old man from Croxteth, Liverpool, was arrested on suspicion of assisting an offender. The men have been taken to police stations for questioning.

Detectives have previously arrested two men, aged 25 and 27, on suspicion of Ms Dale's murder and two women, aged 21 and 48, on suspicion of assisting an offender. Those four remain on bail.

Ms Dale, an environmental health officer for Knowsley Council, is not believed to have been the intended target of the killing.

Her death was one of three fatal shootings within a week in Liverpool.

Nine-year-old Olivia Pratt-Korbel was killed in her home in Dovecot on August 22 and 22-year-old Sam Rimmer was shot dead in the Dingle area on August 16.

Deadly...car fumes produce tiny toxic particles enter bloodstream through the lungs

Teens exposed to smog at risk of heart attack

AIR pollution can trigger a potentially fatal irregular heartbeat in healthy teenagers.

Youngsters' hearts can skip a beat within two hours of exposure to smog – increasing their risk of a heart attack, a study shows.

Tiny toxic particles reach the bloodstream after being inhaled into the lungs.

They come from diesel fumes, brake pads, tyres and road dust.

Known as PM2.5s, they have been linked to heart disease in adults.

But the study in the Journal of the American Heart Association is the first to show they cause irregular heart rhythms, or arrhythmias, in youngsters.

Author Dr Fan He said: "Our findings linking air pollution to irregular heart rhythms suggest particulate matter may contribute to the risk of sudden cardiac death among youth."

Alarming

Once inhaled, pollutants irritate the lungs and blood vessels around the heart.

Over time they increase the process of disease in the arteries.

An analysis of 322 adolescents found 79 per cent had at least one irregular heart rhythm during a 24-hour study period.

Dr He said: "It is alarming we were able to observe such a significant impact of air pollution on cardiac arrhythmias when the air quality remained within the healthbased standards established by the EPA [US Environmental Protection Agency].

"It may suggest that adolescents who live in highly polluted areas such as inner cities are at even higher risk."

He added: "Protective measures, such as

By Mark Waghorn

wearing masks and avoiding vigorous physical activities, may be warranted on days of hight particulate concentration."

Prof Robert Brook, of the American Heart Association, called for more robust air quality regulations.

He said: "PM2.5 levels have fallen dramatically since the 1970s-80s due to regulations unquestionably linked to improved health effects and life expectancy.

But he was dubious about the effects of protective measures, saying: "We outlined in a recent AHA scientific statement activity or behavioural changes that may reduce pollution exposure, such as portable air cleaners, facemasks, respirators and exercising during non-peak hours.

"But there have been no studies to show these measures can prevent adverse clinical health effects such as heart attacks."

This year a study found air pollution in urban areas across the globe contributed to 1.8 million excess deaths in 2019.

Prof Brook added: "The most significant aspect of this study is clearly that the results were found in healthy young adolescents.

"The study adds support for concern that even healthy young people are not immune to adverse cardiovascular responses to PM2.5.

"It is plausible that the findings help explain the potential reason for the time of onset of arrhythmias and even sudden death in some susceptible young people."

Dr He and colleagues are currently evaluating the impact of air pollution on other markers of cardiac electrical activity.

day for three years could make a significant difference for those over 65.

Study co-principal Professor Laura Baker, of Wake Forest University School of Medicine, in North Carolina, US, said: "Our study showed that daily multivitamin-mineral supplementation resulted in significant cognitive improvement.

"This is the first evidence of cognitive benefit in a large longer-term study of multivitamin supplementation in older adults.

"There's an urgent need for safe and affordable interventions to protect cognition decline in older cognitive decline. against adults."

The research team estimated that three years of multivitasupplements roughly translated to a 60 per cent slowing of cognitive decline, equating to almost two years.

"Additional research is needed in a larger and more diverse group of people. Also, we still have work to do to better understand why the multivitamin might benefit cognition in older adults."

The findings were published in the journal Alzheimer's & Dementia.

MANY of us are now living for longer than before, so finding ways to ensure that we spend more of those years in good physical and mental health has never been more important. The results from this study are encouraging, but as the authors point out, we need more large-scale trials.

However, there are some important foods and nutrients to think about as we age.

All adults over 65 should take a daily vitamin D supplement during the autumn and winter months to help protect bone health.

It is also recommended to take a daily supplement of vitamin D all year round for older adults who don't get much exposure to sunlight on their skin during summer. It is a good idea to include plenty of calcium-rich foods.

These include low-fat dairy foods, fish with edible bones and fortified breads and cereals.

This is especially important for women after the menopause, who lose bone at a faster rate than earlier in life. Not getting enough B vitamins has been linked to cognitive decline and dementia risk.

Foods that provide these vitamins include green vegetables, meat, fish, dairy and fortified foods, like breakfast cereals and breads.

It is too soon to know if multivitamin and mineral supplements can slow cognitive decline as we age.

What we do know though is that aiming for a healthy, balanced diet, staying well hydrated and finding ways to be more active are important.

Not just for looking after our physical health, but also our mental well being.

Patient safety alerts double as doctors burn out

Pressures...medics are struggling

EXHAUSTED doctors pose a real risk to patients' health - with safety incidents doubling, a huge study revealed.

Medics experiencing burnout are far more likely to be involved in treatment errors and "suboptimal care".

The link was highest among younger doctors and emergency medicine physicians, it was said.

Patients are also less likely to be satisfied with the treatment provided by medics suffering from the syndrome.

The study comes after senior health leaders raised serious concerns over burnout among medical professionals working in the NHS.

By Ella Pickover

On the back of dealing with the pandemic, doctors are now facing record waiting lists in hospitals, while GPs try to keep concerned patients healthy.

A damning report by MPs on the Health and Social Care Select Committee last summer found NHS and social care staff burnout had reached an "emergency" level. It concluded that posed a risk to the future of services.

The latest study, led by academics at the University of Manchester, set out to examine the effects of the condition on a global scale. They conducted a systematic review of all available research on doctor exhaustion.

Burnout is defined as a syndrome related to emotional exhaustion, a sense of reduced personal accomplishment, and a sense of cynicism and detachment from work.

Their report said: "Burnout is a strong predictor for career disengagement in physicians as well as for patient care.

"Moving forward, investment strategies to monitor and improve physician burnout are needed as a means of retaining the healthcare workforce and improving the quality of patient care."

Researchers analysed statistics from 170 studies, involving more than 239,000 doctors, and found burnout was linked to an almost four-fold decrease in job satisfaction. They also found medics were more likely to regret their career choice.

Emotional exhaustion is most common in doctors aged 31-50, and among those working in emergency medicine and intensive care, it was said.

The findings are published in the British Medical Journal.

Man who had Lyra murder weapon jailed

By John Twomey

A MAN convicted of possessing the gun used to kill journalist Lyra McKee has been sentenced to seven years.

Niall Sheerin, 29, pleaded guilty earlier this year to possession of a pistol and ammunition with intent to enable another person to endanger life.

Ms McKee, 29, was shot dead as she observed rioting in the Creggan area of Derry in April, 2019. A republican group styling itself as the New IRA admitted responsibility.

At a hearing in Belfast yesterday, judge Mr Justice Fowler handed down the extended custodial term of seven years and five more years on licence.

The gun used to kill the author – a Hammerli X-Esse .22 pistol – was found in plastic bags behind a telegraph pole in a field in the Ballymagroarty area of Londonderry in 2020.

Bullets and a spent magazine were also discovered there. DNA linked to Sheerin, from Derry, was found on the weapon which had been used in five previous shootings in 21 months.

Lowry's £8m match is made in heaven

TRUDGING loyally to support your team on a dreary Saturday after a week at work was captured in oil by LS Lowry - and now it could be worth up to £8m.

Shrouded in coats and hats, the Salford artist's matchstick figures stream to the turnstiles at Bolton Wanderers old home of Burnden Park in Going To The Match.

It last sold in 1999 to the Professional Footballers Association (PFA) for £1.9m.

Then PFA chief executive Gordon Taylor described it as their "prized possession", adding: "It is quite simply the finest football painting ever."

Now the PFA has split and its new Players Foundation arm is hiving off the 1953 oil to raise funds for old and current stars.

Going To The Match is tipped to smash the £5.6million Lowry record for The Football Match and a painting of Piccadilly Circus, both sold in 2011.

Nick Orchard, of Christie's, London – which auctions it next month - said: "What it's really about is humanity."

Zelensky praises troops on visit to liberated city

By Mark Reynolds

PRESIDENT Volodymyr Zelensky yesterday toured towns newly recaptured from Russian invaders, while Vladimir Putin's army floundered.

The Ukrainian leader visited the Kharkiv area as civilians revealed the torture they had suffered. Mr Zelensky emphasised his troops' growing success, with Russia retreating in the north-east of his country.

Even as the Ukraine flag was once again raised in front of the burnedout city hall in Izium, Mr Zelensky remained sombre amid the ruins.

He said: "The view is very shocking but it is not shocking for me. Because we began to see the same pictures from Bucha, from the first de-occupied territories...so the same destroyed buildings, killed people."

SPICE Girl Melanie Chisholm has revealed she was sexually assaulted in a hotel the night before the band's first concert.

The singer, better known as Mel C or Sporty Spice, had booked a massage at her hotel in Istanbul, Turkey, on the evening before the show in October 1997 when the attack happened.

In an interview she said she ignored the incident because of her fear of upsetting people – a trait which later stopped her seeking help when she wanted her life to end.

Father and sons unearth soldier's 15th century hoard

THESE medieval coins found by a family of metal detectorists may have been buried by a soldier during the Wars of the Roses.

The 21 pieces were unearthed in a field of stubble by Jeff Warden and sons Michael and Nick near Harrogate, North Yorks.

Jeff, 65, uncovered a silver penny then Michael, 41, and Nick, 42, found more plus a gold ring engraved with the Holy Trinity. The ring – buried 12-inches deep – sold for £6,500 at Noonans of Mayfair and the coins are tipped to fetch £1,000 on Wednesday, September 28.

Nigel Mills, coins expert at the London auction house, said: "The hoard dates to the late 1470s and was deposited during the Wars of the Roses, a conflict fought between the Lancastrians and the Yorkists.

"The hoard is very unusual, comprising 21 coins with a face value of two shillings and three pence. The earliest coins date from the reign of Edward IV, of the House of York, in the 1460s while the newest date from his second reign after he deposed Henry VI in 1471. The fact that the coins are not particularly valuable suggests they did not belong to a wealthy person.

"The coins appear to have been buried hastily. It is likely that they were preparing for battle. That the hoard was never recovered suggests they were killed."

The civil war was fought between 1455 and 1487 by two branches of the House of Plantagenet – identified by the white rose of York and Lancaster's red rose.

Around 28,000 men were killed before it ended with York's defeat and the ascension of Henry VII.

how Olivia once mischievously came to school wearing pink nail polish, and spent the day with her hands closed to hide it from the teachers.

The headteacher said today would be dedicated to the schoolgirl and pupils had been encouraged to wear pink.

So far, nine men have arrested and been released in connection to the shocking incident. Crimestoppers founder Lord Ashcroft has offered a £50,000 reward for information that leads to convicting the killer.

Lord Ashcroft said: "We need to catch the cowards responsible. Olivia's murder has shocked us all, which is why I have made this offer to help get justice."

The funeral takes place at St Margaret Mary's Church Dovecot, Liverpool.

Marathon to include 3 gender options...

By Martyn Herman

THE London Marathon will have a non-binary gender option for the first time.

All potential runners will have three choices when the ballot opens on October 1 - male, female and non-binary.

But this won't apply to the elite races, which all operate under World Athletics rules.

Event Director Hugh Brasher said: "This is a significant step forward for the TCS London Marathon as we continue our journey to make our event truly inclusive.

Charities

"We know there is still much more to be done, but changes such as this demonstrate our commitment to making the TCS London Marathon an event that is for everyone."

The change follows a review and consultation by London Marathon Events (LME) aimed at making it the most "diverse, equitable and inclusive" marathon in the world.

comes the day after the Boston Marathon also said it would have a non-binary option. Next year's London

The London move

Marathon takes place on April 23.

The three gender options will be offered to all participants going for a non-elite place, including entry routes via charities.

Bet shows real guts!

By Mike Bedigan

THE celebrity owners of Wrexham FC both had colonoscopies for a bet then shared the videos.

Deadpool star Ryan Reynolds and comic Rob McElhenney are supporting Lead From Behind, a group raising colon cancer awareness.

Ryan bet if Rob managed to speak Welsh, he would film himself having a colonoscopy.

He lost and a polyp was found. Rob had his done and three were spotted, but all could be removed safely.

Rob said: "We both turned 45, and there you go, people need this."

The pair then shared their videos online.

Regular trimming of your hedge will thicken it up and give it an incredible texture, but heavy trimmers, cables, and step ladders make hedge trimming a job that some people hate. Gtech's cordless HT50 makes hedge trimming a pleasure.

Cordless Convenience

With 60 minutes of runtime*, you can move freely around your garden without being tethered by cables or worrying about messy petrol. Running off a high torque 18V motor, the HT50 Hedge Trimmer supplies the power directly when needed. The lightweight but super strong drive system is designed for refinement and quiet running, but don't be fooled – the precision, laser cut blades power through branches up to 25mm thick. Leaving a clean cut is vital to promote a healthy hedge.

Long Reach

The Gtech HT50 Hedge Trimmer has an adjustable head that rotates through 135° so that you have full control over the cut of your hedge. The head adjusts downwards so you can cut the top of your hedge easily, and upwards so that you can cut thorny hedges without scratching your arms. Keep your hedges neat by cutting flat along the tops of hedges up to 10ft tall† using the 55cm long blade. The precision blades power through foliage, leaving clean cut, healthy stems which will bud out to create a beautiful, rich textured hedge.

Perfectly Balanced

Weighing only 2.94kg and accompanied by the harness, you can move freely around your garden without feeling anchored down. The HT50 is well balanced giving you a more enjoyable gardening experience without worrying about the weight.

Buy now and receive our Garden Rack (worth £19.99) to keep your Hedge Trimmer stored neatly in one place, with separate compartments to hold the battery, pole and blade. To receive your Garden Rack, enter the following code when buying online: EM97

Taking it to the max

it show Changing Rooms is back after a 17-year break and, both on screen and off, star interior designer Laurence Llewelyn-Bowen is on a mission to encourage us to have more fun when it comes to home decor.

While the last 20 years have seen trends for neutral colours, plain fabrics and minimalism, Laurence believes it's now time to take it to the max. When it comes to home decor, he says, the bolder and more creative the better.

"The problem with all of that beige stuff is it's so uninspiring - like wet cardboard. It's a rather irritating leftover of the British obsession with good taste," says Laurence, 57, who shares his Cotswolds home with wife Jackie, daughters Cecile and Hermione, their husbands Dan and Drew, and their children.

Indeed, instead of keeping up with the Joneses, Laurence wants us to embrace our individuality.

"We feel we've got to decorate a certain way or people will sneer at us.

"There are so many homes out there that have been decorated just to titillate estate agents and I think it's absolutely awful. Your home should be an expression of your personality."

And he believes it's never been more important to have a little fun.

"With such a scary world outside our front door, it's important to have a space where you feel safe, comfortable and nourished.

"For the majority of people, that's not a modern space at all."

Here he shares his tips for unleashing your wild side.

Forget boring beige when it comes to home decor, it's time to rip up the rule book and have some fun, says interior designer Laurence Llewelyn-Bowen eating or sitting and chatting, and it will feel more cosy.

EMBRACE KITSCH

Having a sense of humour is important - whether it's displaying plates on the wall, having a neon flamingo in one corner, or putting a pineapple ice bucket on a bar cart. It's a great way to spice up your home.

Don't be afraid to display things because you're worried they won't be seen as tasteful. Remember - there is no such thing as good or bad taste, only what you love.

TRY CLASHING PATTERNS

Only you can decide whether things clash or go well with each other. In fact, pairing colours and prints that other people think clash with each other can make rooms look more exciting.

If you're nervous about putting different prints and patterns together, try to find patterns that have a starting point in common – it might be they're all different types of floral pattern, or all prints that feature female forms. Ultimately there's no right or wrong way of doing it, so have some fun.

PAINT THE BATHROOM RED

We often have

amazing ideas

worry about

but then

will think

In bathrooms there's often an enormous amount of white, because > we're worried about making the mistake of having an avocado bathroom suite like in the 1970s. But the result is that bathrooms often look like an autopsy chamber.

One of the best things you can do is to paint your bathroom tomato soup red. When you look into the mirror in the morning, warm light will bounce onto your face and make you look wonderful, even when you have bags under your eyes. It will make your bathroom look fabulous too.

IT'S OK TO GET IT WRONG

We often feel afraid of making the wrong choice when it comes to our interiors. But don't be afraid to be playful and enjoy decorating, even if it's not to everyone else's taste.

Remember, there's nothing wrong with moving things around your home until you find the right spot for them, or repainting a room because you don't love the colour. Nobody gets it right the first time.

> ■ More, More, More: £20) is available now.

BE BRAVE

When designing your home, there are only two ways to start thinking of ideas: the first is to close your eyes and dream of what you want the room to look like, and the second is to open a bottle of gin to give you courage.

We often have amazing ideas, but struggle with implementing them because we worry about being judged. It's time to forget what your neighbours, mother-in-law or the estate agent might think, and instead follow your instincts.

DISPLAY WHAT YOU LOVE

Forget Marie Kondo - the idea that everything you own should be imprisoned in the under-stairs cupboard to stop the house looking cluttered is ridiculous.

That leads to a very unhappy room and an unhappy person living in that room.

You want to look around the room and be reminded of people you love and fond memories - whether it's your granny who left you that painting, or that time you bought a crazy raffia donkey in Acapulco airport after an amazing holiday.

Surround yourself with things that mean something to you, and make you smile.

SHOP SECONDHAND

Search for treasures on websites like eBay, Etsy and FirstDibs. It's a great way to shop because you can type in the thing you've always wanted and instantly find it.

As well as being less expensive, it's much more eco-friendly than buying new furniture and sending it to landfill when you're sick of it. And it makes for more interesting interiors, too. Don't be afraid to mix old, new and borrowed or inherited furniture for a truly unique look.

DON'T BE AFRAID OF THE DARK

People often shy away from bold or deep colours because they worry about making the room look smaller.

But don't worry about that choosing deep colours can make them look glamorous.

For instance, painting a room dark blue will show off all your furniture beautifully and make your crazy patterned cushions look even more vibrant.

Why not branch out from neutrals and soft pastels?

We often just have spotlights in the kitchen, making it look sterile and uninviting. But maximalism is all about creating cosy spaces that make you feel at home.

Make your kitchen feel like somewhere to sit rather than somewhere to cook by putting table lamps on the worktop, or standing lamps in the corner of the room.

This means you can switch off bright overhead lights when you're

From building Lego to getting creative with paints, psychotherapist

Joanna Fortune believes just 15 minutes of playtime each day will cut stress, boost mood and help you think positively

Think back to your childhood and find a memory of you at your most joyful. What were you doing in that moment?

Chances are you were playing.
As children we spend our days in play, be it imaginative, creative or some kind of sport.

But as we reach adulthood, this stops and playtime is replaced by work, life admin, housework and other mundane things.

In short, playtime is over. Yes, our busy lives can leave us time poor.

Running from one urgent task to another, we feel we don't have time to be playful.

But it doesn't have to be this way. Play, whether you're two or 52, creates moments of joy, which in turn boosts a positive mindset and outlook on life. It builds creativity, emotional resilience, improves self-esteem, and shows us that making mistakes doesn't matter – it's just part of the game.

What's more, taking time out of your day to play will banish stress, as focusing your mind on fun helps to reduce tension.

And just 15 minutes of play a day is all it takes.

15-MINUTE PLAY MAKERS Activity jar

Find a jar and write lots of different activity ideas on coloured notepaper. Fold these up to put inside the jar. You can add to them at any time.

When stuck for inspiration, simply reach into your jar, pull out a random activity and do it, whatever it might be. Some ideas include: putting a song on your headphones and dancing and singing along, doing a jigsaw puzzle, or heading outside to spin around or skip.

Create something

Keep some playdough or Lego in a desk drawer or your bag, and use it to build or sculpt something. Using your hands to create will ground you in the present moment and can be a lot of fun.

To make one coloured ball of playdough takes just 10 minutes, and is an enjoyable activity in itself.

Simply combine 8tbsp plain flour, 2tbsp table salt, 60ml warm water, 1tbsp vegetable oil, and the food colouring of your choice.

Mix it together until it forms a soft dough. It will keep in a box for up to three months.

The street-shopping game

When walking down the street, look around. Imagine you can choose one thing to buy that you would love to own (you have a limitless budget). Think about why you've chosen this piece and where you would put it in your home.

It could be a chair in a cafe, a neon sign above a shop, or a dog you spot wandering by.

A sketch a day

Get a pad or a notebook and draw something every day. It doesn't matter what it is or how it looks, but have a daily burst of creativity.

Colour your feelings

Start by deciding what colour each feeling is. See each one as a shape, with different sizes and textures.

Now when you have a grey blobby day, a small purple triangle type of day or a blue spiky day, only you know what it means, and you can draw it in your notebook.

Map it out

Take a page and, holding a pencil in your dominant hand, close your eyes and move the pencil around it to make the outline of a map.

For 15 minutes each day, add something to your map (houses, transport, recreational aspects, people, infrastructure, environmental features) to create your perfect world/community.

Paint stones

Next time you are out for a walk gather up small smooth stones (shells, too, if you live near a beach). Paint one at play time. Keep your work or write messages of kindness and compliments on the back and leave them in random places for others to discover and enjoy.

■ Extracted by Hannah Britt from Why We Play: How to Find Joy and Meaning in Everyday Life by Joanna Fortune (Thread, £8.99).

Just 15 minutes is enough time for our nervous system to calm down, and it is also enough time for us to enjoy the many benefits of play. And practice makes perfect.

Get into the habit of creating space for play by setting aside a specific time each day - set your alarm so you don't forget.

new season is a great time to try out a new look – and this autumn is no exception. If you're in need of some inspiration, the country's top stylists are here to help with their pick of the most flattering and easy-to-wear trends.

GO NATURAL

Stop straightening your natural curls, says Larry King, hairdresser to the stars. Natural hair texture is a big autumn trend.

"Take inspiration from the 1990s and Julia Roberts in Pretty Women," he says. "This trend is about wearing natural curls – whether waves or coils – with confidence. As we head into the new season, we will see a movement towards people embracing their natural texture." Your secret weapon is a curl enhancer, such as Larry King Wild & Unruly, £26 (larryking.co.uk). "Applying it will encourage the curl into the hair, for texture and definition," says Larry.

"With coily hair, it can define coils and create that 70s-inspired afro shape too."

HEADBANDS ARE BACK

Go bold when it comes to hair accessories, says Babyliss ambassador Syd Hayes.

"A headband is the ultimate lazy accessory as it distracts from greasy roots."

Hair bands are versatile, with plenty of inexpensive options to be found, such as this braided satin style, £8 (asos.com). From chunky to dainty, there is something out there to suit everyone.

"Add a headband to hair tied into a topknot, with a piece braided and wrapped round the bun," says Syd.

GO GOTHIC

Blondes are murkier and brunettes have gone darker and deeper this season, says Zoe Irwin, creative director at John Frieda Salons.

"So take inspiration from Kourtney Kardashian, whose ice
brown,
super-dark hair is leading the trend. Ask for a shade two to three shades darker than normal – but don't take it as far as black, aim for walnut," she adds.

This trend can also be applied to your cut too. "The gothic trend sees a blunt finish to hair, such as a neck-grazing bob," says Zoe.

"When styling, keep volume to a minimum but make sure your hair has shine."

product, warm the cream in your hands before use and massage it in. When the product is warmed it penetrates better. Wait 10 minutes for it to sink in before going to bed."

WARM IT UP

"Rose bronze, or 'ronze', is a copper shade set to be huge this season," says Zoe. "This is less vibrant and orange than traditional copper. It's a softened, wearable copper with ash tones."

Muting copper in this way makes it work for lots of skin tones.

Zoe adds: "It's a grown-up red, and great for mature skin too. What is more, red notoriously fades out of hair, and can look flat. But this is easier to maintain with a simple glaze at home."

THE MODERN CROP

"Soft crops are back, with a

HOW TO TAKE CONTROL OVER YOUR HEATING

Invest in a Warmer Home Today. Choose Electric

The world is turning green, be a part of it and make a difference

Although a popular choice for heating our homes, gas boilers are fraught with issues.

Uneven heat dispersion and lack of room-by-room controllability mean you could be left cold and unhappy, all whilst potentially polluting the environment with harmful gases.

EFFICIENT

If you are amongst the 22 million
UK households with gas boilers installed, then you may not be fully prepared for a sudden cold spell.

The inefficiency of gas boilers could also cost you hundreds of pounds in repairs and maintenance. A breakdown could leave you frantically reaching for quick fixes to your heating problems, never permanently solving your broken heating and costing more than the boiler is worth.

The Future is Electric

Fischer has been manufacturing and supplying the UK with modern efficient heating solutions for over 70 years.

With the domestic market moving away from gas installations and the UK government banning the installation of gas boilers in all new homes by 2025, homeowners are looking for alternative ways to heat their properties. The Fischer EB is an electric DUO boiler that has been built with the future in mind.

With no need for external water tanks or cylinders, the Fischer EB is a modern and efficient heating solution to replace your outdated heating. Made from 304 stainless steel, Fischer EB is built to last and simple to operate. And with no additional need for servicing, you can enjoy peace of mind knowing there is no risk of your boiler breaking down.

Complete Control

Fischer EB comes with a wireless thermostat that has been designed for easy and simple use. Program your Fischer EB DUO boiler to make sure you are getting the right temperature, when you need it.

No wasted heat, no wasted energy (at the point of use) and no more panicking when the weather takes a turn for the worse. At the touch of a button you will experience the warmth and comfort of Fischer EB.

Doing your bit

Fischer Electric DUO Boilers run solely on electricity, meaning if you are supplied with renewable energy you can heat your home without worrying about any harmful gases or pollutants. Installation is easy and simple, just a straight swap with your existing boiler with no extra pipework needed.

You can enjoy the warmth of the Fischer EB and relax knowing there is no need for additional maintenance or servicing. Enjoy peace of mind knowing there is no risk of breakdown, burst pipes, gas leaks or a cold home this winter.

Thanks to their unique design and high-quality engineering, Fischer pack all these innovative features and technology into a unit that is half the size of an average cylinder.

Removing uncertainty

Like the weather, there are many things that are uncertain. One thing you can be certain of is the heat and comfort experienced from your Fischer EB. Fischer are so confident in their product that they offer a 10-year Manufacturer warranty.

A cleaner future

Act now! Install an energy efficient Fischer Electric DUO boiler and replace your bulky, inefficient gas or oil boiler. Benefit from controllability and comfort this winter and request your free brochure today.

Power your future with the Fischer EV Charger

"The world's smartest EV Charger"

Here at Fischer, we continue to work tirelessly to provide the British public with innovative, renewable home heating solutions that never compromise on performance or cost.

We are proud to introduce our latest innovation in the world of home renewability - Fischer Electric Vehicle Charger.

The cutting-edge Fischer EV is controlled via a mobile app in order to ensure complete control of your vehicle charging, from charging status to charging preferences. You can also input your electricity tariff details into the Fischer EV mobile app in order for the EV system to charge your vehicle at the cheapest times in order to keep your energy bills down. The Fischer EV could also reduce customer carbon emissions by up to 20%.

The Fischer EV also includes unique Dynamic Load Balancing technology offered as standard, meaning that the EV will automatically change the maximum power to the charger in order to balance the electricity usage in your home. The Fischer EV's smart over-the-air technology provides your system with automatic software updates, ensuring your EV is also functioning at its maximum capacity.

As well as this, the Fischer EV's smart technology includes a boost feature that temporarily overrides your charging schedule in order to ensure your car is charged as soon as possible. Know you are doing the right thing for the planet with Fischer.

James becomes war vet

OU know it's autumn when great TV dramas start pinning us to the sofa of an evening.

Channel 5's hugely successful reboot of ALL CREATURES GREAT AND SMALL returns tonight (9pm) for its third series of cosy-as-heck its third series of cosy-as-heck plots, in this case featuring not just furry friends but the most evil of enemies, too.

It's the spring of 1939, three months on from the events of series two, and the threat of war hangs over Darrowby.

As veterinary surgeons, James (Nicholas Ralph) and the now fully qualified Tristan (Callum Woodhouse) will be in protected employment, but that doesn't stop James fretting over his contemporaries joining up.

It does mean, however, that he needn't leave behind his beloved bride-to-be Helen (Rachel Shenton), other than to attend to his regular duties.

Those duties now include carrying out testing for bovine TB, in line with a national directive issued by the Ministry of Agriculture. With local farmer William Henry fearing his own cows may have succumbed, James is forced to drop everything – yes, even with the wedding imminent – and head high into the Dales, in order to give anxious Henry's herd his full attention.

Does the practice's head vet Siegfried (Samuel West) really appreciate young James's unswerving dedication? Or might it need a quiet word from the refreshingly no-nonsense Mrs Hall (Anna Madeley) to remind him just how fortunate he is – and maybe even encourage him to demonstrate his gratitude?

Elsewhere, from fiction to fact, Game Of Thrones actor Kit Harrington is the first personality to feature in the new series of MY GRANDPARENTS' WAR (C4, 9pm), exploring the roles his ancestors played in the fight against Nazi Germany.

Kit's dad's parents, John and Lavender, worked for MI5 and MI6, which means they both had to sign the Official Secrets Act. A fair bit of digging will obviously be required to unearth their story, but Kit seems to relish the challenge.

Focusing first on the mystery surrounding his grandfather's work,

Kit says: "I'm hoping to uncover his hidden life as a spy and secrets that strike at the heart of the British establishment."

On a lighter note, the five remaining contestants in ALL THAT GLITTERS: BRITAIN'S NEXT JEWELLERY STAR (BBC2, 9pm) are asked tonight to create a "statement" brooch, inspired by the culture and heritage of Birmingham, where the show is set.

"Oh, where do I begin?!" exclaims host Katherine Ryan, on hearing that the great city will be the jewellers' inspiration.

"Curries! Chocolate! Roundabouts! The total absence of any five-star hotels!"

PICKS OF THE DAY

Documentary: Ambulance, BBC1, 9pm

More life and death decisions on Britain's front line. Tonight, paramedic crewmates Paula and Phil (left) attend a vulnerable patient contemplating self-harm. En route, things take a worrying turn as the patient starts showing signs of hallucinations and erratic behaviour. Meanwhile, call handler Olivia takes an emergency call for a patient who is struggling to breathe. As she tries to arrange an appropriate response, the caller becomes aggressive and threatens to make a formal complaint against her. Crewmates and partners Keigheley and Georgina are dispatched to their first patient of the shift – an elderly female having difficulty breathing. Narrated by Christopher Eccleston.

Film: Indiana Jones And The Last Crusade, Film4, 9pm

Seat-of-the-pants action-adventure classic starring Harrison Ford (left), Sean Connery and Denholm Elliott. Archaeologist Henry Jones, played by Connery, disappears into thin air and his son Indiana, Ford, joins the desperate search for him. During the hunt, Indiana crosses some old enemies once again and looks for an ancient religious artefact. Five-star fun from director Steven Spielberg.

Crime: The Railway Killers, Five Star, 10pm

A woman goes missing while travelling on a train home from work, raising fears that the killers have struck again, which later proves to be true when her body is discovered. Police eventually come across a man whose suspicious behaviour marks him out as a possible perpetrator. This factual series demonstrates how policing was hampered by a lack of sophisticated forensic techniques in the 1980s.

Lifestyle: Ben Fogle: New Lives In The Wild, C5, 10pm

In the final episode of the current series, Ben Fogle meets Dan (above), a photographer living off the land in the wilds of Oregon in the United States, who relies on catching fish and harvesting wild weeds to provide himself with food, and has built his own Native American-inspired sweat lodge. Dan reveals how his childhood inspired his lifestyle, and takes Ben on a journey deep into the surrounding mountain ranges.

Comedy: Taskmaster, 4Extra, 9.50pm

Greg Davies (right) dishes out the absurd A-list challenges once more, in this comedic game show which was originally created for the Edinburgh Fringe in 2010, where a team of celebrities compete against each other to complete tasks assigned to them. Tonight Irish comedienne Aisling Bea, Bob Mortimer, Mark Watson, Nish Kumar and Sally Phillips battle to lay their sticky fingers on Taskmaster Greg Davies' golden trophy, with his assistant Alex Horne helping to lead the hilarity.

DID YOU KNOW? Actor Kit Harington comes from a prominent British family who descended from royalty, with his late paternal grandmother Lavender Cecilia Denny being a distant relative of King Charles II.

15 NIGHTS DEPARTING

27TH OCTOBER, 10TH & 24TH NOVEMBER, 8TH DECEMBER 2023, 5TH JANUARY & 16TH FEBRUARY 2024

Day 1 Fly from London to Bridgetown, Barbados

Upon arrival, transfer to the port and embark the brand new Arvia for your 14 night voyage beginning with an overnight stay on board

Day 2 Bridgetown, Barbados

In Barbados' capital there are intriguing signs of its British colonial past while, across the island, you are really spoilt for choice. Perhaps take a trip to the uniquely magnificent Harrison's Cave underground complex of caverns, waterfalls, stalactites and stalagmites

- Day 4 Road Town, Tortola
- Day 6 La Romana, Dominican Republic
- Day 8 Philipsburg, St. Maarten
- Day 9 St. John's, Antigua

With its 365 beaches, there's a slice of white sand heaven for every day of the year. It also played host to Admiral Horatio Nelson's fleet in the late 1700s and you can explore Nelson's Dockyard, which, these days, is filled with luxury yachts

- Day 11 Basseterre, St. Kitts
- Day 12 Fort-de-France, Martinique

You're sure to be swept away by the Windward Island of Martinique; the epitome of paradise with a volcanic twist

Day 13 Castries, St. Lucia

Lush, romantic and welcoming, stunning Saint Lucia is an adventure waiting to be had. The dramatic twin peaks of the Pitons make a majestic backdrop as you hike through the rainforest, sail with dolphins or sip a cocktail on a palm-fringed beach

Day 15 Bridgetown, Barbados

Disembark and transfer to the airport for your overnight flight to London>

Day 16 Arrive in London

Days not mentioned are spent relaxing at sea. Itinerary is based on 24th November 2023 departure and ports of call may vary on other departure dates

ARVIA - BE ONE OF THE FIRST TO SAIL ON THE NEWEST SHIP IN THE P&O CRUISES FLEET

Joining the fleet in December this year, this new Excel class ship will be just as innovative as her sister ship Iona. Arvia is the first ship of her kind, boasting a SkyDome with a retractable glass roof. Or, relax in the Infinity and Panorama Pool and Bar, which is another P&O Cruises first that offers the ultimate luxury experience. You will also be able to choose from 20 restaurants, including exclusive new dining concepts and exciting eateries. Expect energetic adventures, one-of-a-kind dining experiences and soothing relaxation options. Arvia also joins Iona as P&O Cruises most environmentally friendly ships using LNG power - the first British ships of their kind.

Garlie Wood Marmalade loaf cake

This orange marmalade loaf cake is lovely and moist, as well as being sweet and flavourful: a must for serving alongside a big pot of tea. Serves 10.

175g butter
175g golden caster sugar
3 eggs
85g orange marmalade
2 tbsps runny honey
200g self-raising flour
11/2 tsps baking powder
1 tsp ground ginger
1/2 tsp mixed spice
3 tbsps milk

METHOD

1) Preheat the oven to 180C. 2) Grease a 900g loaf tin and line with baking parchment. 3) Beat the butter and sugar together in a bowl until pale and fluffy. Then beat in the eggs, and add the marmalade and honey.

4) Into a separate bowl, sift in the flour and add the baking powder and spices. Add the milk and mix until well combined. Transfer to the prepared loaf tin.

5) Bake tin in the preheated oven for 60 to 70 minutes until it has risen and a skewer inserted into the centre comes out clean.

6) Remove from the oven and allow to cool before slicing and serving.

ALAN'S TIP OF THE DAY: Lift and divide large clumps of lily bulbs, or plant new bulbs. Choose deep, rich, well-drained soil. Many varieties need lime-free conditions, so check the instructions on the back of the pack. Most need planting deeply to twice their own depth.

Princes' attempt to bury the hatchet is complicated

CAROLE Malone is as perceptive as ever doubting that William and Harry's show of togetherness is likely to bring about a reconciliation ("Reunited... but rift will be far from healed", September 14).

The appearance of the brothers and wives was a wise move which seemed to be orchestrated by William. The arrival of the Sussexes at that time was unlikely to cause any unpleasantness. The Queen would have praised the princes' attempt at reconciliation.

However, while Harry praises the Queen's smile, he has done little but remove it for so long.

Christine Kershaw, Minehead, Somerset

Harry needs to prove he is worth his salt again

HOW right is Carole Malone in her latest article on the so-called grieving grandson.

I've lived through Her Majesty's magnificent reign and have never known such a spoilt and unworthy royal.

Get your act together young man and make your father, the King, proud again.

Chris Reed, Chelmsford, Essex

Her Majesty's death is the wrong time to protest

FREE speech is vital to the free world, something many populations will never have the luxury of.

However that doesn't mean letting a few people disrupt the lives of the many to get their political points over when faced with the death of a monarch ("Ex-top cop raps demo arrests", September 14).

If one of their family members were to die, how would they feel if abuse were hurled at the hearse?

Susan Dance, Harrogate, NYorks

Let the public deal with anti-monarchist rabble

IT'S good the police are clamping down on the anti-monarchist rabble.

However, if Extinction Rebellion put in an appearance, can the police please leave it up to the public to deal with them?

Graham Partington, Liverpool

Free speech mob lucky to escape wrath of crowd

HOW many of the so-called "free speech" gang scour the country, including universities, to shout down speakers and try to have their engagements cancelled because the views expressed do not coincide with theirs?

They should be thankful that they were arrested to protect them from crowds sympathetic to the Queen.

Colin Judge, Poynton, Cheshire

Her legacy is a lasting gift to us all

TWO days before our beloved Queen died, my wife and I celebrated our platinum wedding anniversary. We had already received a congratulatory card and photograph from Her Majesty a couple of days before the event ("Home... for one last time", September 14).

I was discussing the loss of our Queen with my grandson, who made what I thought was a marvellous and very powerful analogy. He said: "Grandad, it's like losing Father Christmas." It may sound a little strange to compare Her Majesty with a fictitious figure, but who could be more well-loved than Father Christmas all over the world and missed if not there? Only our beloved Queen Elizabeth II.

EU ditching back-patting mantra speaks volumes

HAS anyone else noticed that, since the start of Russia's war against Ukraine, which has turned into the biggest and bloodiest conflict in Europe since the end of the Second World War, Eurocrats have stopped spouting their self-congratulatory mantra that the EU has kept Europe conflict-free for the last 77 years ("Russia accused of 'terrorism' after strikes on power station", September 14)?

Robert Readman, Bournemouth

Tyrant Putin lashes out as his crimes are exposed

YOU can tell when a man like Putin is on the ropes. He lashes out with anything to hand in order to survive. His Russian army, such as it stands, is in almost full retreat, exposing the atrocities and horrors committed in Putin's name to the Ukrainian authorities and to the world in general.

Michael Hilder, Weymouth, Dorset

Mary and Chris handled this tragic event perfectly

I AM full of admiration for Mary Nightingale and Chris Ship for their reporting on the sad death of our amazing Queen and all the protocol that followed. I don't think anyone could have been more respectful but also normal in their delivery.

> Jennifer Laing, Penrith, Cumbria

BBC is king of TV when it comes to these occasions

THE BBC's comprehensive coverage of the Queen's passing poses a question for its critics ("Full TV coverage across all channels", September 14).

How do they think a subscribed channel could compare?

It would be tawdry and tarnished The BBC is television royalty and I can't imagine our new King would be amused by measures to hurt it.

HOW much more of this industrial action will the public have to put up with before strike organisers see sense ("More dock strikes set to cause Christmas misery", September 14)?

As the nation mourns our wonderful Queen's death and her dedication to public duty it seems at odds to be talking about strikes once again.

Strikers don't need as much as they did a fortnight ago after Liz Truss intervened on the energy cap so stop grumbling and get our economy moving again.

Jim Wilkinson, York

No

ON THIS DAY

41 years ago (1981) Our front page told how PM Margaret Thatcher had dealt with three ministers in a bid to stamp her authority on the Government.

Tory chairman Lord Thorneycroft, Employment Secretary Jim Prior and Deputy Foreign Minister Sir Ian Gilmour had formed a group dubbed the "Wets", which opposed the Prime Minister's more extreme policies.

82 years ago (1940) The RAF claimed victory in the Battle of Britain forcing German leader Adolf Hitler to put on hold his plans to invade the British Isles, which was codenamed Operation Sea Lion.

After suffering heavy losses, the German High Command realised the Luftwaffe could not achieve aerial superiority over the RAF, which was a precursor to the invasion.

22 years ago (2000) The Summer Olympics began in Sydney, Australia with a record 199 nations taking part at the Games.

The only missing International Olympic Committee member was Afghanistan which was banned due to Taliban's oppression of women and its prohibition of sports.

Family's £35m windfall after Dunelm reveals record profit

THE family behind curtains and cushions chain Dunelm have netted another £35million after the retailer revealed record annual profits.

Bill and Jean Adderley started out selling ready-made curtains on a market stall in Leicester in 1979.

The business now has 175 stores, 10,000 staff and a stock market value of were strong, it said. Bosses also more than £1.5billion.

Results published yesterday for the year to the start of July showed profits leapt by 32.4 per cent to £209million on sales up 16.2 per cent to £1.55billion.

The strong performance prompted the retailer to announce a final dividend of 26p a share. Together with an earlier interim dividend, it took the full-year ordinary dividend to 40p.

Among the big winners from the payout is the Adderley family, who still hold a near 43 per cent stake.

Sir Will Adderley, Sir Bill's son and deputy chairman, owns a almost 38 per five per cent.

They are due £22.5million worth of final dividends, on top of £12million economic weather and it seems likely from the interim payout. Last year also Nick Wilkinson, chief executive, said: "We feel confident and well prepared to weather the current economic pressures.

"We emerged from an unprecedented global pandemic as a bigger, better business and we believe we have the tools in place to do that again."

The firm increased pay by more than seven per cent on average for staff. It also hired more than 800 extra workers during the year.

Russ Mould, investment director at broker AJ Bell, said: "For now, the cent stake, and his mother Jean almost company is sticking with full-year forecasts.

> "But even Dunelm can't change the sales will eventually suffer."

RYANAIR USE OF GREEN FUEL

TARGET: Ryanair plans to have its operations net-zero by 2050

RYANAIR has struck a deal to increase its use of sustainable aviation fuel.

The Irish carrier has signed a memorandum of understanding with Austrian firm OMV that would allow it to buy up to 160,000 tons of the fuel over the next eight years, Ryanair claims it would save more than 400,000 tons in CO2 emissions. OMV says the sustainable aviation fuel (SAF) includes used cooking oil.

The deal would specifically provide fuel for Ryanair at airports across Austria, Germany and Romania. It has pledged SAF will make up 12.5 per cent of its usage by 2030 and it aims to reach net-zero emissions by 2050.

MARKET REPORT

SHARES fell yesterday as a surprise easing in inflation did little to deter expectations of a 75-basispoint rate hike by the Bank of England next week.

The FTSE 100 dropped nearly 1.5 per cent to 7,277.3, with just seven stocks ending the day in positive territory.

They included consumer healthcare giant Haleon, which gained nearly 1.4 per cent, or 3.7p, to finish at 270.3p.

Ocado Group suffered another sell-off. After falling 14.5 per cent on Tuesday, shares in the online supermarket and tech firm tumbled another 8.25 per cent, or 56p, to 623.2p.

Joining it among the FTSE 100's big fallers were financial giants Abrdn (down 6.9p at 142.3p) and Schroders (down 108p at 2,546p).

The FTSE 250 shed 1.66 per cent, with drinks maker C&C Group dropping 8.1 per cent, or 14.1p, to 159.8p after warning of a sales slowdown.

DANCER CAN STEP UP TO THE TASK

MISTY DANCER (3.35, nap) can sidestep her rivals by winning the British Stallion Studs Scottish Premier Series EBF Fillies' Handicap at Ayr this afternoon.

The daughter of Dubawi scored her first win at Goodwood at the end of last month, striding clear of Lady Shotgun by four lengths. Tackling handicap company for the first time the three-year-old looks certain to improve further for Simon and Ed Crisford. BADRI (8.15, nb) appeals in the William Hill

Lengthen Your Odds

By The Scout (Chris Goulding

Racing League Race Forty-One over six furlongs at Newcastle.

Ruth Carr's five-yearold has been in fine fettle this summe. He won at Gosforth Park three weeks ago under Paul Mulrennan, who picked his way through the field before surging clear to win by two and a half lengths.

AL SIMMO (4.02, treble) can turn the tables on Another Romance in the British EBF Premier Fillies' Handicap at Pontefract with a 9lb swing in the weights.

□UNBEATEN juvenile Noble Style will miss the Juddmonte Middle Park Stakes at Newmarket on Saturday week after suffering from a bout of colic. A winner at Ascot in May and Newmarket in July, Charlie Appleby's juvenile completed his hat-trick with a clear-cut victory in the Group Two Gimcrack Stakes at York last month.

Noble Style, who was a best priced 5-2 joint-favourite for the Middle Park, holds an entry in the Dewhurst on October 8 and is prominent in ante-post lists for next year's 2000 Guineas.

Baaeed to bow out at Ascot

BAAEED will sign off his career in Ascot's QIPCO Champion Stakes after William Haggas ruled out a swansong in the Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe.

In the wake of the three-year-old's victory Juddmonte International over 10 furlongs at York last month, Haggas had spoken of "a strong chance" that the Sheikha Hissa Al Maktoum-owned Baaeed would step up to a mile and a half for Europe's middle-distance championship in Paris on October 2.

DEVASTATED York City Knights star Danny Kirmond admits playing rugby league has helped him "escape" the trauma of his younger brother's tragic death.

The former England international kicks off his club's Championship play-offs campaign at Halifax on Sunday.

He bravely played on, just days after Jack Kirmond, 33, was killed following an assault outside Sharlston Rovers ARLFC last month.

Former Wakefield captain Danny said: "I felt like I was in a massive goldfish bowl.

"Obviously, it was absolutely devastating to myself, all my family. Jack wasn't just my brother,

York promised Kirmond they would be "normal" with him and the 36-yearold said that the club were true to their word.

"That's exactly how it went," he said.

Kirmond admits it would be "brilliant" for York to spring an upset in the playoffs - and recent events have the veteran second-row thinking he might even play on in 2023. He added: "For such a tragic and shocking thing to happen...it's really overwhelming.

"But what's given my mum a lot of comfort is Jack's heart, his kidneys, his liver have all gone on to someone else.

WORCESTER were on the brink last night of having to forfeit Sunday's Premiership game against Exeter after the deadline to pay outstanding debts came and went.

A press release on Tuesday claimed an agreement had been made for the sale of the cash-strapped rugby club and that the interested party would produce funds in time to save the fixture.

MAX MALINS has Saracens' Premiership rivals on red alert after revealing he is on a mission to make up for last season.

The 25-year-old England wing is coming off a campaign in which he scored 16 times in 15 games to finish as the Premiership's top try scorer.

He bagged four against Wasps, four against Worcester and a hat-trick against Bath as Sarries made the final in their first year back in the top flight after enforced relegation.

However, Malins lost his England place for the climax of the Six Nations and the tour to Australia, while Sarries finished without a trophy for only the second season since 2014.

"It was disappointing," said the Cambridge-born flier. "I wanted to be on that tour representing my country. I wasn't exactly pleased with my performances in the Wales and Ireland games.

"At the club we got to the Prem final, didn't win that; got to the semi-final of Europe, didn't win that. Many players here have won titles, that's what drives us. So our motivation couldn't be higher."

Saracens are the last cab off the rank, having been the odd team out when the 13-league Premiership kicked off last weekend.

They are also favourites with bookmakers to win their fifth title in nine years but an opening game on Saturday at arch-rivals Harlequins, who they beat in the semi-finals in June, will be one of their toughest tests all season.

"For it to come so early is a treat for the fans but a massive challenge for us, it being our first competitive game," Malins said.
"We know the challenge, know the rivalry, we're expecting a tough game."

Malins is as exciting an outside back as there is in the English game, Sarries director of rugby Mark McCall likening him to All Blacks star Beauden Barrett.

However, Malins concedes he has yet to show his best at Test level and returned for pre-season driven to make that step up.

"I'm not sure I've shown what I am about on the international stage yet," he said. "I haven't quite hit my straps playing for England.

"We all put expectation on ourselves at this club.

"Last year we got close but didn't quite get there. We don't talk about that but it is in the back of our minds.

"We want to see how far we can take this group, how good we can become. There's room for growth. We know it, we've just got to try

SARACENS STAR EAGER TO GET BACK ON TRACK

CAM NORRIE launched a rescue mission for Great Britain with a dramatic comeback win against Taylor Fritz after Dan Evans had lost the opening rubber to Tommy Paul in Glasgow last night.

The British No.1 – playing in front of his home crowd with his Glaswegian dad David looking on – thrilled the 5,000 crowd by coming back from a set down to win 2-6 7-6 7-5.

Norrie was blown away in the first set but battled back to take the second to a tie-break, playing out of his skin to win it 7-2 and level the match.

The world No.8 grabbed the crucial break in the ninth game of the third.

Serving for the match, Fritz, ranked four places lower, broke him straight back - but Norrie was not to be denied.

He promptly broke the American to love, giving him the chance to serve for the match for a second time – and this time he made no mistake.

He said: "I have to thank the fans for their support. They got me through the second set to a Emirates Arena. After losing 4-6 It's a hard, physical court to play that.

Hearn: AJ could not turn down Fury

ANTHONY JOSHUA finally accepted Tyson Fury's offer to fight on December 3 because he feared he may not get another chance. Promoter Eddie Hearn was unhappy with the terms tabled by the WBC heavyweight king Fury for British boxing's biggest fight, with Cardiff's Principality Stadium the likely venue.

favour, and Hearn admitted: "I didn't expect the next fight to be Fury, but AJ is the boss. He said, 'I may never get the chance again because he fights [Oleksandr] Usyk, he retires, etc...'

"This is the fight AJ's wanted for so long and he wasn't prepared to wait any longer. He felt this could be his only opportunity to get the fight. Everybody asks me about this fight all the time and he's continuously fought all challengers.

"He's continuously fought everybody people have wanted him to fight and this is another example of that. Mr Fury has a great deal, but this one wasn't about the money for AJ.

"This was about the challenge - and we accept the challenge. We weren't allowed to negotiate. In all deals you negotiate, but we were told unequivocally take it or leave it.

"We were treated like the B-side going into the fight. Whether that was right or wrong, it doesn't matter because it came down to AJ wanting the fight."

to report, especially with so many other injury pull-outs.

But Erik ten Hag insists Rashford has shown enough to earn a World Cup place.

The United manager said: "This season he is showing great potential and quality.

"He's not available [tonight]. It is still the consequences after Arsenal.

"We expect him quite soon to be back in the team."

But the doubts over Rashford are a potential opening for the uncapped Toney, right, who has impressed England with his recent displays, including a hat-trick against Leeds. He is also a penalty expert and coach Thomas Frank has backed him for a Three Lions call.

England are concerned about proper back-up for Harry Kane with Roma's Tammy Abraham the clear competition up front, while Rashford and Raheem Sterling are adaptable enough to play wide and centrally.

Southgate must name a 55-man long list to FIFA on October 21 before picking his final 26-man party on November 9/10.

England face major injury issues for this month's Nations League games.

Luke Shaw, Jordan Pickford, Kyle Walker and Jordan Henderson are doubts and that may mean a reprieve for Trent Alexander-Arnold amid concerns over his form.

TEEMU PUKKI scored two goals as Norwich made it six out of six but the second-placed Canaries were left hanging on at the end by a controversial Robins reply.

Pukki capitalised on two defensive clangers to put his side in control but Tommy Conway's reply set up a second half that saw Josh Sargent put Norwich 3-1 up, before substitute Antoine Semenyo netted a goal Canaries fans insisted should not have stood.

Norwich almost gifted the Robins a goal before a minute was on the clock when Sam Byram inexplicably passed to Conway, who fired across goal and wide from just inside the box.

Nigel Pearson's side had cause to regret that when Kal Naismith made a hash of dealing with Kenny McLean's free-kick in the 11th minute.

Pukki seized on the bouncing ball and lifted it above advancing goalkeeper Dan Bentley before nodding deftly into the empty net.

Naismith was at fault for Pukki's second in the 23rd minute. The centre-back saw McLean intercept his pass and Aaron Ramsey sent Pukki through for a shot that deflected in off Zak Vyner.

The Robins pulled one back in the 44th minute when Conway headed home Nakhi Wells' cross. It had been coming, as Norwich had been overrun in midfield for a while.

In the second half the visitors remained the side most likely to score, until they were caught out from a corner in the 65th minute.

Substitute Gabriel Sara's delivery from the left was met by Sargent, who had got across Vyner, for a bullet header that was too hot for Bentley to stop.

The visitors were back in it with 13 minutes remaining thanks to Semenyo's strike but Norwich were furious referee David Webb allowed it to stand.

Max Aarons went down on the right of the Canaries box when Wells whacked him on the head rob him in the box and Semenyo norwich city (4-1-4-1): Krul 6; Aarons 7

Picking up a pass from Ilias Chair, Willock spun on it and fired a pinpoint low strike into the bottom corner.

Johansen then capitalised on slack Millwall defending to make it 2-0, cutting inside following a corner and skimming a low shot past home keeper Bartosz Bialkowski.

Rotherham continued their impressive Championship start with a rampant 3-0 win over Blackpool. The victory, courtesy of goals from Chiedozie Ogbene, Wes Harding and Georgie Kelly, put Paul Warne's side up to ninth and within a point of the play-offs, with a game in hand to boot.

Gustavo Hamer's wonder goal grabbed a point for struggling Coventry as Luton's home hoodoo continued in a 2-2 draw.

Carlton Morris fired the Hatters ahead before Coventry striker Viktor Gyokeres levelled with a low shot. Morris' tidy finish restored the hosts' lead in the 15th minute but Hamer's 25-yard screamer in the 62nd minute denied Luton a first home win this term.

FOOTBALL: EUROPA LEAGUE_

SHERIFF V MAN UNITED

5.45PM, BT SPORT By David Anderson

DAVID GEA admits Manchester United would rather play in the Champions League but he is still desperate to win the Europa League.

United goalkeeper De Gea has a long and chequered history with the Europa League, winning it as a 19-year-old when he helped Atletico Madrid beat Fulham in 2010.

The Spaniard, now 31, was on the bench when United beat Ajax in the 2017 final before he missed the decisive penalty in the 2021 shoot-out defeat by Villarreal.

Although he thinks a club of United's stature should be playing in the top tier, he refuses to turn his nose up at the chance of European silverware.

And he says tonight's clash with Moldovan champions Sheriff is a must-win after United's shock home loss to Real Sociedad last week.

"It's a very special competition," said De Gea. "Of course, in my opinion, we should be playing in the Champions League. But this is the competition we have to play for and we will give it everything.

"I have good memories of this competition and we have another big game against Sheriff. We lost our first one in the group and we have to win this game against a very difficult team."

Erik ten Hag also admits nothing less than three points will do in the Zimbru Stadium as they bid to kick-start their group campaign.

"It's the same for every game, we have to win," said the United manager. "It's clear that when you lose the first game, you have to win the second."

Like everywhere, the fans in Moldova only had eyes for Cristiano Ronaldo when the United squad jetted into Chisinau yesterday. They are desperate to see their hero play, but Ten Hag would give nothing away when asked by a local journalist if Ronaldo would start or be on the bench.

"I'm sorry, the Moldovan fans will have to wait," he said.

Ronaldo is expected to lead United's attack because both Marcus Rashford and Anthony Martial are injured. Ten Hag can field a strong side because Sunday's clash with Leeds has been postponed and he is respectful of Sheriff, who beat Real Madrid and Shakhtar Donetsk in last season's Champions League

"It's a serious and decent opponent and we have to play at our best to win," he said.

UNITED (probable): De Gea; Dalot, Varane, Martinez, Malacia; Casemiro, Eriksen; Antony, Fernandes, Sancho; Ronaldo.

of West Ham's Europa Conference League clash in Denmark tonight.

Silkeborg, fourth in the Danish Superliga, play on an artificial surface at their 10,000-seater JYSK Park stadium.

Moyes has included defenders Craig Dawson and Aaron Cresswell in his squad after spells out injured, but he may not risk them on the super-fast turf.

"It's given me some thoughts," said the Hammers manager. "We respect that it's an artificial pitch, we have some decisions to make.

"We'll have a look at Craig and Aaron and check out what's best for them with the surface and everything. They have done a bit of training. It's something we have to work with and do the best we can."

Fellow defender Ben Johnson is still sidelined but midfielder Tomas Soucek and winger Maxwel Cornet have shaken off knocks. Thilo Kehrer is expected to feature again after a tricky start to his West Ham career. The defender gave away a penalty on his league debut against Brighton and scored an own-goal against Tottenham, but has also showed glimpses of the form that has earned 20 caps for Germany.

"It has been the best way to integrate," said Kehrer. "I've been involved straight away and for me it has felt good. As I have followed the Premier League before I knew that I would have to adapt and I'm still doing that."

WEST HAM (probable): Areola; Coufal, Kehrer, Dawson, Cresswell; Downes, Rice, Lanzini; Benrahma, Scamacca, Cornet.

Bale and fellow veterans on same Page as boss Rob

WALES' core of ageing stars have "promised" Rob Page they will not all quit together.

Skipper and record scorer Gareth Bale, Aaron Ramsey, Joe Allen, Chris Gunter and Wayne Hennessey are all in their 30s.

Bale said recently after moving to Los Angeles FC that he aims to play for Wales at Euro 2024.

But several of his team-mates have been tipped to retire after November's World Cup - the country's first appearance at the finals for 64 years.

Page, who signed a four-year contract as permanent manager this week, admits it would be devastating to his plans and the "culture" of the side if numerous veterans bowed out together after Qatar. He said: "We want

Gareth to stay involved as long as he can. "All the guys are aware of the culture so they are going to be sympathetic to it, if and when they decide to step aside. "I don't think there is going to be a mass of six or seven leave. "Hearing Gareth say he wants to stay on beyond the World Cup is great, especially for the younger players.

"He can have an influence on them at every camp.

"You can't go from them having a big influence to a big chunk of them leaving.

"To keep that culture going we need as many senior players that have had that influence from 2016.

"They have promised they will not all leave together. I have already thought of some players I will want to keep with me because they are key to that environment and drive that culture."

Bale is unlikely to feature against Belgium in Brussels next Thursday in the Nations League due to club commitments.

He will only land at Heathrow on Tuesday ahead of Wales' double-header, which includes Poland's visit to Cardiff on September 25.

Bale has made only one start and eight substitute appearances in MLS.

But Page is pleased to see his talisman again after he was frozen out at Real Madrid, where a glittering spell turned sour.

Page added: "He

"I'm pleased for him and his family that he is in a good place mentally and at a club that show him love.

"If he plays 10 minutes for them it is more than he was playing before.

"Whatever minutes he plays, I know when he comes to camp, even if he does not play, he will be ready for us.

his former club to be languishing in the bottom half of the table at this stage. Eddie Howe, below, takes his team into Saturday's home game against his old club Bournemouth with just seven goals from their opening six matches, having failed to win since they beat Nottingham Forest on the opening day of the campaign.

However, former England midfielder Lee is convinced they will be flying high soon.

In fact, he has been so impressed with the Toon that he is wondering if his pre-season prediction of a top-10 finish was overly cautious.

Lee, 56, spent a decade at St James' Park.

He racked up more than 300 appearances in teams which finished as runners-up twice, reached two FA Cup finals and regularly qualified for Europe and Lee certainly believes the good times are back for 11th-

"They went toe-totoe with Manchester City in one of the best games of the season so far and could have won maybe even should have won – and then they travelled to Liverpool without some of their best players.

"They looked the better side for long periods and were desperately unlucky to By lan Murtagh lose with the last kick of the game."

Lee, who was back in the North East recently to play in a golf tournament at Close House to raise funds for the Michael Carrick Foundation, was bullish about his former club's prospects even before a ball was kicked this term.

"The mood in the city has been transformed since the takeover," the Londoner said. "The fans are more upbeat than they have been for many years.

"There is a real feel-good factor about the place these days.

"The atmosphere on matchdays is > incredible, a bit like it was under Kevin Keegan [during the Nineties]. "Throw in the fact they did so well in the second half of last season, and I always felt they were capable of breaking into the top 10.

"But they could be looking at an even higher finish.

"The way that they performed in those games against City and Liverpool, those players will feel they can beat anyone.

"I'm sure Eddie Howe would like a bit more depth in the squad. But the signings he has made have improved the team so much.

"Bruno Guimaraes has been superb since arriving in the new year. The likes of Matt Targett and Dan Burn have also been real unsung heroes.

"It's only a matter of time before they are winning again and climbing the table."

CELTIC could not build on a dominant start against Shakhtar Donetsk as they were held to a frustrating 1-1 draw in Poland.

Reo Hatate's run beyond the home defence led to Celtic taking an early lead but Mykhaylo Mudryk equalised against the run of play in the 29th minute.

Ange Postecoglou's men survived some more pressure before reasserting their superiority after the break.

But substitute Giorgos Giakoumakis missed the best in a series of opportunities for Celtic to claim their first European win of the campaign.

Postecoglou said: "More significant than the point was the performance - and the performance was excellent. The result was not reflective of that, but they gave everything and that's all I can ask for.

"We needed that second goal and we had good chances to get it."

Rangers defied UEFA's blanket ban on British teams playing the national anthem before their Champions League clash with Napoli, which ended in a 3-0 defeat. The decision is likely to lead to Rangers being fined.

Raheem Sterling scored the first goal of the Potter era and if co-owner Todd Potter, 47, admitted he had never Boehly was watching after punting his idea for a US-style All-Star North v

South game, then the Chelsea forward would surely be guaranteed a place.

But they let it slip with the familiar failings of Potter-ball because they dominated, played some pretty stuff and did not put the opposition away. Instead, the Blues were held to a draw amid missed chances and defensive errors at Stamford Bridge and Potter clearly does not have a magic wand.

At the final whistle there was a smattering of frustrating boos.

It should have been a big night but ultimately it fell rather flat.

The minute's silence before kick-off was impeccably observed, Chelsea fans doing their own rendition of the national anthem whether UEFA liked it or not, and there was even a huge banner at the Shed End reading "RIP Your Majesty". It was a mark of

Of Liverpool's stuttering start, Van Dijk said: "There are reasons why it is not going so well. The reasons have been highlighted, especially the game against Napoli. We were absolutely shocking that night, we know it. It hurts all of us, it hurts me.

"What we did last week was unacceptable, all of us, and the days after that game we definitely had a reality check. The last week was quite tough to watch for everyone - especially us. But we also have to remember we are human beings, and it is possible that it happens. It is how you react that counts."

There was a certain anger in the performance against Ajax, and from Van Dijk as he spoke candidly to the media after Tuesday's win. He questioned former players who do not reflect their own experience and argued that he would not do the same as a pundit.

Van Dijk said: "Ex-pros and players who have played at this level know there are times when you can have a blip, a period like this unfortunately, and it is how you react.

Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth 1926 - 2022

Dog days at Balmoral Castle

THIS is a stunning shot by famed royal photographer (and the Queen's cousin) Lord Lichfield from the Monarch's 1971 summer holiday in Aberdeenshire. The Queen is closely associated with corgis but she's had many different dogs over the years. You don't have to be an animal lover to enjoy this, but the obvious warmth between owner and pets is lovely. A pitch-perfect picture.

Rolling out the red carpet

THIS was a state banquet to honour Indian President Pratibha Patil, held in St George's Hall at Windsor Castle in October 2009. These events are a chance for Britain to roll out the pomp and ceremony we do so well.

Incredible moment a rainbow seemed to signal her passing

HEN news began to trickle out that the Queen's health had taken a turn for the worse, Getty Images royal photographer Chris Jackson grabbed his kit and headed to Windsor.

With the Royals having rushed to Scotland to be with the ailing Queen, Chris, 42, who has photographed the family for more than two decades, thought he might capture a poignant shot of Windsor Castle in the early evening light.

Then something rather extraordinary happened – a hazy rainbow began to appear over the Round Tower, the Berkshire royal residence's central keep.

"Literally at that moment, my phone buzzed with a news alert from the BBC – the Queen had passed away," Chris recalled this week.

"There was a small group of people near me and they were looking at their phones too. As I stood there, the rainbow grew stronger and clearer.

"It was such a surreal moment –
one of those things I will never forget – but the rainbow appeared almost at the very moment my phone alerted me to her passing." As the Union
Flag was lowered to half-mast, Chris

By Matt Nixson

snatched a shot against the stunning backdrop of the rainbow.

The magical image, like many hundreds of his pictures, appeared in newspapers and websites around the world.

Today Chris, who grew up in the Welsh borders and has covered the Royal Family in more than 100 countries, taking official portraits as well as news shots, shares his own favourite shots of the Queen and other iconic images.

"The Queen's incredible stamina and endurance has outlasted any single photographer's career," he says. "I've been lucky enough to photograph her for 20 years but even that is just a small snapshot of her incredible lifetime.

"There have been so many fantastic photographers over the years and she outlasted any one career, which goes to show her longevity and the influence she has had around the world.

"Part of my job is recording historic moments and it's been incredibly busy – but there have been moments I've thought back to past engagements and found it hard to believe she's finally gone."

Saddest shot AN incredible image. I vividly remember seeing it on my phone while covering Prince Philip's funeral in April last year from a different viewpoint. I was blown away by its power and symbolism. It's one of the most historically telling pictures of the Queen ever taken: alone and masked due to Covid rules, like so many who grieved in the pandemic.

The mark of a son's love

A FABULOUS shot of the Queen and Prince Charles. You could forget they were mother and son because you see them in their respective roles. Here, the Queen is clearly touched by Charles' kiss and the backdrop - at the Chelsea Flower Show in 2009 - sets photographer Sang Tang's shot off perfectly. A heartwarming moment, artfully captured.

Monarch and the Mountie

THIS was taken during the Queen's 2010 tour of Canada, in Winnipeg. It was a powerful moment as she looked on, beside this Mountie who could have come from central casting, both set against the backdrop of a cold, grey sky. I remember taking the shot really well. The Queen and the quintessential Canadian lawman.

Happy times... on bot

Royal spectacle THE Royal British Legion's Festival of Remembrance takes place at London's Royal Albert Hall the night before Remembrance Sunday. I normally capture the Royal Family arriving and, after they are seated, before proceedings. Although a sombre occasion, it is not without its lighter moments, such as this one shared by the Queen and Prince William in 2016 while she rummaged in her handbag for her specs.

Riding high

THE Order of the Thistle is the oldest order of chivalry in Scotland. Here, the Queen and Duke of Edinburgh leave the Signet Library, Edinburgh, for St Giles' Cathedral for the Thistle Ceremony of July 2012 where Prince William was being installed into the order. The pomp and ceremony are incredible, as are the outfits in my shot. I was reminded of this image this week as the Queen lay in state in St Giles'.

Historic moment on Buck House balcony

THIS was a unique occasion marking the centenary of the Royal Air Force in July 2018 and a lovely line-up on the balcony at Buckingham Palace. They'd just enjoyed an incredible RAF flypast and everyone is watching the Queen's reaction, leaning in to share the moment with her. It's a lighthearted shot but shows the very spot where some of the most memorable moments in the last 100 years of British history have played out. A great sense of occasion.

Royal camerawoman

The Queen was always a keen snapper and was patron of the Royal Photographic Society, one of the world's oldest photographic societies, for 67 years until passing it to her daughter-in-law Catherine in 2019. Here she is at Windsor Horse Show in May 1982 with her Leica M3. This shot was taken by Tim Graham, a gentleman I hugely admire. He had a great manner with the royals and captured some lovely shots of the family.

Stunning symmetry

THIS lovely image was taken by doyen of the royal press pack Arthur Edwards, who has worked for The Sun since 1977. The Queen and Prince Philip wave to guests attending The Patron's Lunch celebrations for Her Majesty's 90th birthday on The Mall, London, on June 12, 2016. I've worked with Arthur for many years and we've had the pleasure of covering countless royal tours together. A super shot.

Got your back THIS is a highly unusual formal portrait of the Queen and Prince Philip, taken at Buckingham Palace in December 1958. It catches the eye because of the creative lighting and unique perspective - to have the royal couple not looking at the camera or each other is really something. The photographer,

Donald McKague,

Old soldiers

ONE of my favourite recent shots of the Queen: it summed her up as a beacon of hope during the pandemic. Another inspiring figure was Captain Tom Moore who walked 100 laps of his garden, raising £30million for charity. This was July 2020 and one of the hottest days of the year. Of being knighted, he said: "I'm not going to kneel because I may never get up!" One of my first post-lockdown engagements and a lovely one.

Talking to Gan-Gan IENJOY documenting the links between the generations and this was a lovely moment between the Queen and great grandson, Prince George, at his sister Charlotte's christening at Sandringham, Norfolk, in 2015. With the Norland Nanny in the background, George is clearly sharing something important with Gan-Gan, as the Duchess of Cambridge once revealed he called his grandmother. I have no idea what they were chatting about, but I'd guess George might have been admiring the Queen's hat.

A poignant remembrance EVERY one of the 888,246 ceramic poppies planted in the moat of the Tower of London represented a fallen British or colonial soldier from the First World War. The Blood Swept Lands And Seas Of Red installation in the autumn of 2014 enjoyed a huge public reaction, attracting hundreds of thousands of visitors, the Queen and Prince Philip among them. They laid a wreath and, here, the Monarch is clearly lost in her thoughts. This is my shot. It was a very moving moment.

Pictures: DONALD MCKAGUE, CHRIS JACKSON/GETTY

A quick peek through the curtains
WHAT a lovely, unexpected shot! The Queen peeks out of a window at Buckingham Palace ahead of the Patron's Lunch in June 2016, which transformed The Mall into a street party to celebrate her 90th birthday. Some 10,000 guests enjoyed marking Her Majesty's patronage of more than 600 charities. This was captured by AFP's Justin Tallis. I must've been somewhere else that day!

Adoring gaze

THIS was taken at Sandringham, Norfolk, in 1970, I don't know by whom, before a royal tour of Australia and New Zealand. Any pet lover will recognise the bond between dog – I think it's a corgi – and owner. The dog's gaze makes the image extra special. Equally, Her Majesty looks so radiant and happy, it's hard not to smile just looking at this picture.

Embracing change

WORKING life changed for everyone during the pandemic, and the Royal Family was no exception. Like many millions of us, the Queen embraced Zoom as a way of staying in touch. I took this photograph of her video call to mark Carers Week in June 2020. In fact, it was her first public Zoom call, speaking from her office at Windsor Castle with her daughter Princess Anne and four carers. It's not an especially creative image, but it was a historic, unique moment.
